SEXUALITY

DATE: _____

Sexuality: Is a personal sexual orientation, your sexual activity, your capacity for sexual feelings, desires and your sexual identity. Exploring your sexuality is a natural process in developing sexual maturity but you will need help in using it and expressing it in positive ways. It is very important that you take the time to learn to know, like and accept yourself as a unique individual before you start any relationship. If you have self-confidence and understanding of yourself as a sexual being, you will be able to relate better to others when you enter into relationships/friendships with them.

Due to hormonal and physical changes in your body and mind during puberty, you will become more aware of your sexuality. At times your thoughts can be very distracting, yet exciting, as you explore the world of sexuality. You may become aware of unusual feelings when in the presence of someone you are attracted to. It can leave you with feelings of confusion and anxiety, seeking answers about why you are feeling the way you do. In finding these answers, you need to establish what you feel about your sexuality and how you are going to cope with it. Before starting a relationship with a boy or a girl that you are attracted to, it helps to understand your feeling.

DIFFERENT TYPES OF SEXUALITY

People use a few common labels to identify their sexuality.

Your sexuality isn't defined by who you have sex with. It's about how you feel and how you choose to identify yourself.

The important thing is that you choose what label feels comfortable, or you choose no label at all. You might find, like many others have, that the label you choose changes over time.

TYPES OF SEXUALITY

1. Heterosexual: Attracted mostly to people of the opposite sex or gender.
2. Homosexual: Attracted mostly to people of the same sex or gender (refers to men)
3. Lesbian: Attracted mostly to people of the same sex or gender (refers to women)
4. Bisexual: Attracted to both men and women.
5. Pansexual: Attracted to romantic and sexual partners of any gender, sex or sexual identity ("Pan" means "all").
6. Polysexual: Attracted to romantic and sexual partners of many but not all genders, sexes, or sexual identities ("Poly" means "many").

7. Asexual: Not really sexually attracted to anyone (refers to people who don't feel any type of sexual attraction at all).

What should I do?

- Feelings about your sexuality can be disruptive in your day and it can affect your learning.
- Learn to stay focused in class.
- Get more information, i.e. in books and magazines or on the internet about your growing sexual awareness and the changes you are going through to help you to understand and deal with your curiosity.
- If you are comfortable and have a trusted older person you can speak frankly to, go ahead and see if they can answer some of your questions. It is better to know what is going on than to be in the dark. Learning the correct social etiquette when in the presence of someone you are attracted to will make you feel more in control and give you a better understanding of your sexuality. Displaying good social etiquette helps when you are with the person you like. Applying the tips below will make you feel better about yourself and direct you towards forming a healthy sexual identity.

Some people still enjoy the old fashioned way of treating someone they are attracted to.

They might tell you to:

- Respect their feelings.
- Offer to carry her heavy school bag or sports bag.
- Show support when they participate in an event, such as a cultural or sports meeting.
- Let her walk through the door first when entering a classroom.
- Offer to stand in line on her behalf at the tuck shop.

FACTORS THAT INFLUENCE SEXUALITY

1. Personal feelings.
2. Friends and peers.
3. Family.
4. Community norms.
5. Cultural values.
6. Social pressures including the media.

UNDERSTANDING ONE'S SEXUALITY; PERSONAL FEELINGS THAT IMPACT ON SEXUALITY

Your personal feelings are your emotional responses. You have a range of feelings such as:

- a) Love.
- b) Happiness.
- c) Satisfaction.
- d) Confusion.
- e) Guilt.
- f) Fear.

All these feelings, whether positive or negative, are important. Confusion is important because it makes you ask questions. Fear is important because it warns you against doing something that is not in your best interest. Doing something out of fear or guilt is not usually a good reason for action.

As a teenager you are going through puberty and all the physical and emotional changes that go with it. These changes are completely normal and are part of your journey to becoming an adult. As you change, you will probably have new and confusing feelings about different aspects of your sexuality:

- ❖ Your changing body.
- ❖ Your experience of being male or female.
- ❖ Your sexual desires.
- ❖ Your sexual orientation.

Your feelings are influenced by what has happened to you in your life, how you feel about yourself and how you cope with your feelings. Your feelings and your actions need to match if you are going to feel comfortable. If you do something that goes against your feelings you will probably feel angry with yourself and anybody else who was involved. For example, you need to feel comfortable about doing something as important as having sex for the first time.

THE INFLUENCE OF YOUR FRIENDS AND PEERS

As a teenager you may find that your friends and peers become more important to you than your family. During your teenage years you begin separating from your family in order to become more independent and establish your own identity but you still have the need to 'belong'. You want to be part of your peer group so you may fear that your friends and peers will not like or accept you if you do something different to what they are doing. However, your friends and peers may influence you to behave in a negative way such as getting involved in unhealthy sexual behaviour. They may try to pressure you to do something because 'everyone else does it' and so cause you to choose to do something you usually would not do, or to stop doing something that you normally would do.

We all want people to like us and we want to feel part of a group. At times, friends will boast about their sexuality, but they forget that it is not only a physical transformation, but an emotional one too. You and some of your friends and peers may not all necessarily share the same views on sexuality and sexual behaviour. You should not let your friends sway your values if you do not share their views on sexuality. Remember that your values may not always match those of your friends. It will not make you feel very good about yourself if you want to impress your friends by going against your values. Rely on your values and let them direct you towards positive and respectful relationships.

Your responsibility in a relationship is to behave appropriately. In every relationship there are expectations of the other person. When you are with your friend, you expect your friend to be supportive. Likewise, you are with your parents or caregivers, you expect them to care for you and give you more freedom as a teenager.

When you are in a relationship with a partner, you expect them to treat you with respect. The way you behave in this relationship will also determine how good or bad the relationship will be. Relationships are based on trust and trust is not demanded, it is earned through behaviour that is trustworthy! Never abuse trust and be responsible. If you are in a relationship and you and your partner have different views regarding sexuality, you will need to discuss them and reach an understanding you are both happy with. Do not be pressurised into making bad choices!

You might now have a clearer understanding of how your feelings can affect your sexuality. Even though friends and peers can influence your sexuality, if you believe in your values, you can display appropriate behaviour in any relationship. At times you will encounter situations where you may lose faith in a relationship, but remember you are who you are through your actions, thoughts and behaviour, so do not be pressurised into ignoring your values for the sake of a relationship.

FAMILY, COMMUNITY NORMS AND CULTURAL VALUES THAT IMPACT ON SEXUALITY

Your family members are the first and the most important influence in your life so their feelings, beliefs and attitudes about sex and sexuality have an influence on you and your sexuality. Your family will raise you in a certain culture with values about what is important and acceptable. It will determine the ways in which people should behave in all areas of life including the area of sex and sexuality. Your culture includes what you and your family believe so your culture is usually very closely linked to your religion. Most religions have a set of beliefs and practices around sex and sexuality. For example, some religions believe that using contraception and have sex before marriage is wrong. The cultural values that you grow up with also influence your feelings, beliefs and attitudes about sex and your sexuality.

Community norms are the values and behaviours that are generally accepted by the community in which you live. These norms differ from one community to another. For example, some communities believe that homosexuality and talking about sex with children are wrong. Your community's norms also influence your feelings, beliefs and attitudes about sex and your sexuality as well as your sexual behaviour, your experience of being male or female, how you feel about yourself and others and your sexual orientation.

Just because something is valued and practised in a community does not necessarily mean that it is relevant today. It is good to question the values you have been brought up with.

Different cultural norms exist for concepts like:

- ❖ Sex before marriage.
- ❖ Homosexuality.
- ❖ Polygamy.
- ❖ Contraception.
- ❖ Sexual pleasure.
- ❖ Virginity.

For example in some cultures female virginity is highly prized and young girls are tested, whereas in others girls are expected to lose their virginity before marriage.

Culture includes all the basic things you learn from your family, caregivers, friends, siblings, literature, community and strangers living in the same environment. All their habits, colloquialisms and the way they do things influence you too. Your image will be the same as them, you will dress like them, act like them and communicate like them. You will not even realise that you adopt their habits, as they become second nature to you.

Family and community norms Adults set the norms and standards for their children to follow from a young age. Parents and caregivers want the best for their children. They base their relationship with you on trust and it is important to respect that trust. It is difficult to live with yourself if you know that you have broken this trust. Listen to their wisdom, as they have had experiences that you have not Respect what they say and learn from them. They are the ones who help form your values .In South Africa; many values have changed because people have moved away from where they were brought up, many ending up in cities. As a result, they have lost some cultural norms and adopted Western norms instead. A lot of South Africans have adopted shared values that have obvious features of the African identity and culture.

We have taken on ‘Ubuntu’ – ‘I am because we are. I can only be a person through others’. As young adolescents, you experience the South African community values of Ubuntu, tolerance, acceptance, hospitality, friendliness and sympathy with the emphasis on community rather than the individual. Some rural communities still uphold strong cultural values, such as ‘coming of age’ rituals, which are strictly monitored by community leaders.

SOCIAL PRESSURES, INCLUDING MEDIA THAT IMPACT ON SEXUALITY

The society in which you live expects you to behave in certain ways. You have already looked at some of the social pressures you experience by looking at the influence of your friends and peers, you family, your community and your culture. One of the greatest social pressures comes from the media. The media carry messages from a wider society than your family, friends and community.

The media such as:

- ❖ Radio.
- ❖ Television.
- ❖ Movies.
- ❖ Music videos.
- ❖ Newspapers.
- ❖ Magazines.
- ❖ Advertisements.
- ❖ The internet.

- ❖ Social media such as Facebook, twitter and mix-it on your cell phone carry messages from all over the world that can influence your feelings and attitudes about your sexuality.

Electronic media such as television is constantly depicting sexual behaviour. You see sexual activities in popular soaps opera's on TV and in many movies. Advertisements use sex appeal to sell everything from condoms to clothes and perfume. Music videos are often made for songs with sexual content and show people dressed in sexy clothing doing sexually suggestive movements.

Although the news and crime shows deal with cases of rape, sexual abuse and murders with sexual movies; sex in the movies and TV programmes is usually presented as something glamorous between beautiful people. You seldom see movie stars dealing with the less glamorous realities of sex such as stopping to put on a condom or not enjoying sex or getting sexually transmitted infections as a result of unsafe sex. The beautiful people having sex never seem to have pimples or bad hair days or parts of their bodies that they are embarrassed about. They always seem to know exactly what to do and look perfect throughout.

Of course, reality is very different because real life is not air-brushed, manipulated or digitally enhanced and there's no one to do your hair, fix your make-up, dress you in beautiful clothes and tell you what to do at every step. If you believe what you see in the media about sex, you might look to television personalities, music performers, models and movie stars as role models for how to look and behave in sexual situations. That would give you unrealistic expectations about sex. You need to look critically at everything you see in the media and question whether it is realistic and accurate or not.

It is not only the electronic media that give an unrealistic view of sex and sexuality. The print media, for example magazines and newspapers, is also guilty of that sin. As you know, your body image is the way you see your own body and feel about it. This has a strong influence on your sexual behaviour. If you have a poor self-concept and dislike your own body, you are more likely to have casual, unsafe sex. You don't value and respect yourself enough to look after yourself and treat yourself properly.

Research in America in 2012 showed that the girls and women depicted in magazines make about 75% of teenage girls feel bad about their own bodies. In New York, over 30 000 teenage girls decided to stand up on popular magazines aimed at teenagers and protest against the unrealistic images of girls women that the magazines use. The teenage girls objected to the magazines using airbrushing, digital enhancement and manipulation to make already beautiful models "perfect". The teenage girls challenged the fact that all models shown are tiny, light skinned, straight-haired and flawless. The teenage girls want the magazines to use images of girls of all shapes and sizes, skin colours and hair types to help ordinary girls feel more positive about themselves. The protestors say they are tired of looking at these “perfect” images and then looking in the mirror and feeling as though they do not measure up to society’s view of what is beautiful. They are tired of this social pressure which view of which encourages damaging diets and hair straighteners and makes it seem that the most important thing about a girl is how she looks. The American teenagers looked critically at what they saw in the print media and would not accept the images as realistic and accurate.

PROBLEM-SOLVING SKILLS- IDENTITY FORMATION AND DEVELOPMENT

As a teenager going through puberty you are going through great changes in your body and in your feelings. All these changes take you from being a child to being an adult who can have children. Part of that process is becoming a sexual being and developing a sense of your own sexuality. As a teenager you are starting to form and develop your sexual identity. Your sexual identity is about the characteristics of your sexuality. Your sexual identity is about answering the question: “Who am I, sexually?”

YOUR SEXUAL IDENTITY INCLUDES YOUR	YOUR SEXUAL IDENTITY IS INFLUENCED BY YOUR
❖ Feelings and beliefs about sex. ❖ Attitude to sex. ❖ Sexual behaviour. ❖ Experience of being male or female. ❖ Sexual desires. ❖ Feelings about yourself and others. ❖ Sexual orientation.	❖ Personal feelings. ❖ Friends and peers. ❖ Family. ❖ Community norms. ❖ Cultural values. ❖ Social pressures including the media. ❖ Experience.

Most of these things change over time. Your sexual identity starts to be formed and developed during puberty but it will change and develop throughout your life.

You need to learn how to deal with your changing and developing sexual identity and how to express it. One of the most effective ways to deal with change of any kind is through using problem-solving skills.

PROBLEM-SOLVING SKILLS CAN HELP YOU TO:

- ❖ Make decisions that will affect your sexual identity such as deciding whether to have sex or not.
- ❖ Cope with any confusion you may have around your sexual identity such as not being sure what your sexual orientation is.

- ❖ Explore the pros and cons of possible plans objectively, such as looking at different ways to experiment with expressing your sexual desires safely.
- ❖ Identify lessons to be learned from problems such as negative sexual experiences.

STEP 5: Look back and learn.

STEP 4: Act on the chosen strategy.

STEP 3: Evaluate each option.

STEP 2: Describe possible solution.

STEP 1: Identify the problem.

One of the approaches to problem-solving that you may find useful is a five-step method called the IDEAL problem-solving process. The letters in IDEAL stand for Identify, Describe, Evaluate, Act, and Look back and learn.

Weeks 3 – 4: Health, social and environmental responsibilities

Environmental health

DATE: _____

The environment is the land, air or water in which plants, animals and people live. Environmental health issues have to do with situations in the environment that affect a person's health and quality of life.

Apply the law and protect our environment

How the environment influences our health is an issue that affects everyone. It is such an important issue the every country in the world has laws and policies to protect the environment. There all also international environmental laws that applies to the whole world. Every year 13 million people die because of health issues related to the environment.

The South African Constitution guarantees the following when it comes to our environment.

Everyone has the right to:

- an environment that does not harm their health or well-being
- have the environment protected for the benefit of people living now and in the future, through the following laws:
- prevent pollution and damage to the environment
- support conservation
- make sure we use our natural resources carefully while we improve and develop our country.

Some of the areas that environmental laws cover are:

- Air pollution - to protect the air and prevent and reduce air pollution

- Waste management - how to get rid of rubbish, encourages recycling
- Conservation - looking after our land, natural resources and wildlife
- Water - protecting water resources from pollution as well as making it accessible to people

- Littering – it is illegal to litter or dump rubbish in a place not designed for it.

Earth day: preservation of the environment

Earth day is celebrated on 22 April to honour the Earth's life and beauty. It educates and reminds us how important it is to protect and conserve our environment. Communities use Earth Day to take environmental action.

Earth Day focuses on issues such as:

- ❖ Global warming- due to all the fuels and gases that are polluting the air, the earth is getting warmer every year.
- ❖ Toxic waste – this is waste that is poisonous to people, animals and the environment. Examples are chemical waste from farms and factories.
- ❖ Expanding deserts – when land that used to be farmed becomes desert and can't sustain life anymore. This is usually caused by climate change, e.g. drought.
- ❖ Water pollution – this affects the ocean, rivers, dams and lakes.

Reduce, reuse and recycle

When waste is not properly managed it causes pollution. This harms our environment, affects plants and animals and can cause health problems for people as diseases are spread.

The more people there are the more waste we produce. Where does it all go? The solution to the huge amount of rubbish and waste we produce is to: Reduce, reuse, recycle.

- Reduce: Before you buy something think carefully, do you really need it? We waste money and resources on unnecessary things. Think about the paper you use and waste.
- Reuse: Take your own bags to the shop. Containers, bottles jars can be used to store things in.

- Recycle: Many items can be put through a process so they can be used again or changed into another item.

<http://treevolution.co.za>

Why should we reduce, reuse and recycle?

- in order to keep the size of the dumping sites in control
- to reduce pollution and litter
- to save energy
- to conserve natural resources
- to create work opportunities

What can we recycle?

- paper and cardboard
- plastic bottles and containers
- glass bottles and jars
- polystyrene
- tins and cans
- fruit and vegetables [compost heap]

How to recycle

1. Have separate containers for compost [organic waste] recyclable things and non-recyclable things.
2. You will either have your recycling collected or you will need to take it to a recycling centre. This is usually divided into paper, glass, plastic and tins.
3. Get information about recycling on the following website:

Recycling facts

1. South Africa produces roughly 540 million tons of waste each year, of which isn't recycled and ends up in rubbish dumps and landfills.
2. However, South African homes and industries recycle 38% of plastic, 38% of paper and cardboard and 60% of glass.
3. The paper recycling process creates five times more energy than producing new paper from wood pulp.
4. Recycling one glass bottle saves enough energy to keep a 100 watt light bulb burning for 4 hours.
5. Recycling one aluminum can saves enough money to operate your TV for 3 hours.

Home recycling materials

1. Recycling of paper

- Keep newspapers separate from magazines. Magazines, glossy paper, paper packaging and envelopes can all be stored in the same bin.
- It is not necessary to remove staplers from paper before recycling, but you should remove elastic bands and plastic wrapping.
- Corrugated cardboard [boxes] is a valuable recycling material, but keep it dry.

2. Recycling plastic

- Only certain types of plastic can be recycled, plastic #5 is very difficult to recycle. It is used for packaging margarine and yoghurt, so it is better to keep these containers for reuse.
- Number 1 PET plastic is easily recycled. It is used in most plastic bottles.

3. Recycling glass

- Before recycling glass, it's important that you separate it according to colour: green, brown and clear.
- You don't have to remove the paper labels.
- Light bulbs and mirrors should be kept in a different recycling bin.

4. Recycling metal

- Food cans can be recycled, but recycling centres prefer you to wash them, remove the labels and flatten them as much as possible.
- Aluminium cans [cold drink and beer cans] should be left as intact as possible – no flattening.
- Copper is entirely recyclable.

Once you put your mind to it, and decide to be as environmentally aware as possible, recycling becomes easier.

Weeks 5-6: Constitutional rights and responsibilities

SUB TOPIC: BASIC SERVICES AND NEEDS IN THE COMMUNITY

DATE: _____

NEEDS AND WANTS

There are many things that we need in order to stay alive. There are also many things that we want that we don't actually need, but they make our lives better in some way.

What is need?

- Is something you cannot live without?
- Water and food are good examples of things that satisfy needs.

- If you do not eat and drink you will not be able to survive.

What is want?

- Is something you would like to have but it is not necessary for your survival.
- Music and cell phones are good examples of things that satisfy wants.

BASIC NEEDS OF INDIVIDUALS AND FAMILIES

All individuals have certain basic needs that have to be satisfied in order for them to survive.

These basic needs include:

- Food
- Water
- Shelter
- Security

Individuals generally do not live alone. They live together in the families and other small groups. Living together in groups makes it easier for individuals to satisfy their basic needs. In economics we call groups of people who live together households (groups of individuals such as family members who live together).

COMMUNITY NEEDS

A community is a large group of people who live or work together in a particular place. When people live or work together, they have certain collective needs. Examples of these collective community needs are:

- The need to be protected from criminals.
- The need for education and training.
- The need for medical care.
- The need for entertainment, sport and recreation.

It is the responsibility of local and provincial government to meet the collective needs of a community. Community needs and wants are satisfied by the provision of public goods (things that the government provides that everyone in the community uses, for example a park) and public services (services the government provides that everyone in the community needs, for example water and electricity). Examples of public goods and services are:

- Street lights
- Libraries
- A police force
- Roads
- Buses and trains
- Hospitals

In some communities the standard of living (the level of income, wealth, comfort, material goods and necessities available to a person) is high because the community is able to satisfy many of its needs. In other communities, where resources are more limited and not many public goods and services are provided, the standard of living is low.

Activity 2

Discuss community needs and how these are satisfied.

2.1. Look at the pictures below and on the next page showing three different communities in South Africa. Find the public goods and services provided in each of the three communities. Write down six public goods and services provided in community A, five in community B and only one in community C. On your own, list the public goods and services provided in each community in the space provided.

THE NEEDS OF A COUNTRY

Just as a community of people have certain needs, so too a country has needs. For example, there is a need for law and order in a country. There is also a need for protection from attacks or invasions from other countries.

The national government of a country is established to make sure that these needs are satisfied. The government satisfies the country's need for law and order by setting up a legal system with laws, courts and prisons. The government will also establish a defence force to protect the country from external threats.

PRIMARY AND SECONDARY NEEDS

Primary needs

Primary needs are our most basic survival needs. These are the things we have to have in order to stay alive. There are two groups of primary needs: physical needs and security needs.

a. Physical needs

Physical needs are the needs that our bodies have for food, water and sleep. If these physical needs are not met our bodies cannot function properly.

Examples of physical needs are:

- The need for oxygen to breathe
- The need for food to eat
- The need for water to drink
- The need to sleep
- The need to be protected from the weather (the cold and heat)

b. Security needs

People need to feel safe and secure. Examples of security needs are:

- The need to feel that others will not hurt us

- The need to feel that our belongings will not be taken or broken by others
- The need for structure, rules, law and order
- The need to know that we live and work in a safe environment.

Physical and security needs are known as primary needs because people usually try to satisfy these needs first.

Secondary needs

In addition to our primary survival needs, people have other needs such as a need to belong and need for social interaction. These are known as secondary needs. There are two important groups of secondary needs: social needs and self-esteem needs

a. Social needs

People like to have friends and be part of group. A person's desire to be part of a network of people is known as a social need. Examples of social needs are:

- The need to have friends
- The need to be part of a team or group
- The need to feel that we belong somewhere
- The need to give and receive love.

b. Self-esteem needs

Our self-esteem is the way we feel about ourselves. Individuals with a good self-esteem believe that they are capable and worthy people. Individuals with a poor self-esteem do not believe in their abilities and lack confidence. Our self-esteem needs are needs that must be met for us to feel good about ourselves.

Examples of self-esteem needs are:

- The need to achieve success
- The need to be good at something
- The
- The
- that need to feel that what we do is important and valuable need to be recognised and feel others respect us.

LIMITED RESOURCES TO SATISFY NEEDS AND WANTS

What are resources?

The things we use to produce goods and services.

Resources are scarce

All the items that are used to produce goods and services are called resources. There are many different kinds of resources, including:

- Land
- Supplies
- Transport
- Labour
- Metals
- Crops
- Animals
- Water
- Power
- Buildings
- Equipment
- Machinery

Resources are often limited or scarce. Because there is a limited quantity of resources available we cannot always satisfy all our needs. We call resources which will run out completely one day non-renewable resources (resources that can run out and can't be replaced).oil, for example, is a non-renewable resource. Some resources won't run out because we are able to make more, or because nature replaces the supply.

Renewable resources are resources that can be replaced and will never run out. For example, some areas as rich in natural resources, while other areas have hardly any natural resources. This uneven distribution of resources leads to some places in the world being very rich while others are very poor.

Another important characteristic of resources is that most resources can have many different uses. Water, for example, can be used for drinking, washing or for irrigating crops.

Resources are limited, we have to choose how best to use them. We have to be careful how we use the resources we have so that we can continue to satisfy our needs and wants

Weeks 7-8: World of workSUB TOPIC: KNOWLEDGE OF THE WORLD OF WORK*DATE:_____

As a young adult you will one day enter the working world, be that as an employer or as an employee. In order to function well within this world there are a few “rules” that both the employer and employee must follow. It is best that you familiarise yourself with these “rules”.

These rules are also referred to as working conditions or the conditions of the employment act. This is basically the law that guides us in the work place.

It is always important to know your right as well as the right of the people around you

Basic Conditions of Employment Act - Summary 1997SUMMARY

This is a popular summary of the most important sections of the Basic Conditions of Employment Act of 1997. Workers must be able to see a summary at their workplaces in the official languages that are spoken there.

WHO IS THIS ACT FOR?

The Act applies to all workers and employers except members of the National Defence Force, National Intelligence Agency, South African Secret Service and unpaid volunteers working for charities.

This Act must be obeyed even if other agreements are different.

WORKING TIME

This section does not apply to senior managers (those who can hire, discipline and fire), sales staff who travel and workers who work less than 24 hours a month.

Ordinary Hours of Work

A worker must NOT work more than:

- 45 hours in any week.
- Nine hours a day if a worker works five days or less a week.
- Eight hours a day if a worker works more than five days a week.

Overtime

If overtime is needed, workers must agree to do it and they may not work for more than three hours overtime a day or ten hours overtime a week.

Overtime must be paid at 1.5 times the workers' normal pay or, by agreement, get paid time off.

Meal Breaks and Rest Periods

A worker must have a meal break of 60 minutes after five hours' work. But a written agreement may lower this to 30 minutes and do away with the meal break if the worker works less than six hours a day.

Sunday Work

A worker who sometimes works on a Sunday must get double pay. A worker who normally works on a Sunday must be paid at 1.5 times the normal wage. There may be an agreement for paid time off instead of overtime pay.

Public Holidays

Workers must be paid for any public holiday that falls on a working day. Work on a public holiday is by agreement and paid at double the rate. A public holiday is exchangeable by agreement.

LEAVE

Annual Leave

A worker can take up to 21 continuous days' annual leave or by agreement, one day for every 17 days worked or one hour for every 17 hours worked.

Leave must be taken not later than six months after the end of the leave cycle.

An employer can only pay a worker instead of giving leave if that worker leaves the job.

Sick Leave

A worker can take up to six weeks' paid sick leave during a 36-month cycle.

During the first six months, a worker can take one day's paid sick leave for every 26 days worked.

An employer may want a medical certificate before paying a worker who is sick for more than two days at a time or more than twice in eight weeks.

Maternity Leave

A pregnant worker can take up to four continuous months of maternity leave. She can start leave any time from four weeks before the expected date of birth OR on a date a doctor or midwife says is necessary for her health or that of her unborn child. She also may not work for six weeks after the birth of her child unless declared fit to do so by a doctor or midwife.

A pregnant or breastfeeding worker is not allowed to perform work that is dangerous to her or her child.

Family Responsibility Leave

Full-time workers employed longer than four months can take three days' paid family responsibility leave per year on request when the worker's child is born or sick or for the death of the worker's spouse or life partner, parent, adoptive parent, grandparent, child, adopted child, grandchild or sibling.

An employer may want proof that this leave was needed.

JOB INFORMATION AND PAYMENT

Job Information

Employers must give new workers information about their job and working conditions in writing.

Keeping Records

Employers must keep a record of at least:

- The worker's name and job.
- Time worked.
- Money paid.
- Date of birth for workers under 18 years old.

Payment

An employer must pay a worker:

- In South African money.
- Daily, weekly, fortnightly or monthly.
- In cash, cheque or direct deposit.

Payslip Information

Each payslip must include:

- Employer's name and address.
- Worker's name and job.
- Period of payment.
- Worker's pay.
- Amount and purpose of any deduction made from the pay.
- Actual amount paid to the worker.

Approved Deductions

An employer may not deduct any money from a worker's pay unless:

- That worker agrees in writing.

- The deduction is required by law or permitted in terms of a law, collective agreement, court order or arbitration award.

TERMINATION OF EMPLOYMENT

Notice

A worker or employer must give notice to end an employment contract of not less than:

- One week, if employed for six months or less.
- Two weeks, if employed for more than six months but not more than one year.
- Four weeks, if employed for one year or more.

Notice must be in writing except from a worker who cannot write.

Severance Pay

An employer must pay a worker who is dismissed due to the employer's operational requirement pay equal to at least one week's severance pay for every year of continuous service with that employer.

Certificate of Service

When a job ends, a worker must be given a certificate of service.

CHILD LABOUR AND FORCED LABOUR

- It is against the law to employ a child under 15 years old.
- Children under 18 may not do dangerous work or work meant for an adult.
- It is against the law to force someone to work.

Weeks 1- 2: Development of Self

RELATIONSHIP WITH FRIENDS

DATE: _____

The relationships you form influence your self-concept and give you and give you an idea about where you fit into the community. This is usually defined by your role in the relationship. For example, in a family, there are roles for mothers, fathers and children. Each person is expected to behave in a certain way and to be responsible for specific “duties” to fulfil that role. With friendships people choose to associate with each other and create their own rules.

You grow and develop through your relationships. You learn from the people close to you. As a young child, you get information about your environment, community and yourself from others, particularly adults. Because you have no previous knowledge to compare the information to, you tend to accept what you are told. In this way you develop your self-concept and get an idea of how you are expected to behave.

There are various types of relationships. The first relationships you form are with the members of your family. As you grow older, however, you begin to spend more time with your friends and less time with your family. Both types of relationships influence you in different ways.

Relationships at home

Your relationship with your family first shaped the beliefs and views that you have today. Positive relationships with your family contribute towards your emotional well-being. They become a valuable source of support.

Relationships at school

Teenagers begin to spend more time with their friends than their families. Good friends make you feel valued and accepted. You can enjoy yourself with friends who have similar interests and views.

Relationships in the community

Your relationships grow. As you get older, you develop relationships with people from your community. This brings you into contact with people of different ages, religions, cultures and educational backgrounds.

COMMON DISEASES

a. Tuberculosis (TB) is an infectious disease usually caused by Mycobacterium tuberculosis (MTB) bacteria. Tuberculosis generally affects the lungs, but can also affect other parts of the body. The classic symptoms of active TB are a chronic cough with blood-containing sputum, fever, night sweats, and weight loss. Tuberculosis is spread through the air when people who have active TB in their lungs cough, spit, speak, or sneeze.

Treatment requires the use of multiple antibiotics over a long period of time.

b. Diabetes is a metabolic disorder in which there are high blood sugar levels over a prolonged period. Symptoms of high blood sugar include frequent urination, increased thirst, and increased hunger. If left untreated, diabetes can cause many complications. Acute complications can include diabetic ketoacidosis, hyperosmolar hyperglycaemic state, or death. Serious long-term complications include cardiovascular disease, stroke, chronic kidney disease, foot ulcers, and damage to the eyes.

Prevention and treatment involve maintaining a healthy diet, regular physical exercise, a normal body weight, and avoiding use of tobacco. Control of blood pressure and maintaining proper foot care are important for people with the disease. DM must be managed with ins

c. Epilepsy is a group of neurological disorders characterized by epileptic seizures. Epileptic seizures are episodes that can vary from brief and nearly undetectable periods to long periods of vigorous shaking. These episodes can result in physical injuries, including occasionally broken bones. In epilepsy, seizures tend to recur and, as a rule, have no immediate underlying cause.

The cause of most cases of epilepsy is unknown. Some cases occur as the result of brain injury, stroke, brain tumours, infections of the brain, and birth defects through a process known as epileptogenesis. Epileptic seizures are the result of excessive and abnormal neuronal activity in the cortex of the brain.

Epilepsy can mostly be treated by the use of medication depending on how severe the seizures are.

Obesity is a medical condition in which excess body fat has accumulated to the extent that it may have a negative effect on health. People are generally considered obese when their body mass index (BMI) is too high. Obesity increases the likelihood of various diseases and conditions, particularly cardiovascular diseases, type 2 diabetes, obstructive sleep apnoea, certain types of cancer, osteoarthritis and depression. Obesity is most commonly caused by a combination of excessive food intake, lack of physical activity, and genetic susceptibility. The view that obese people eat little yet gain weight due to a slow metabolism is not medically supported. Obesity is mostly preventable through a combination of social changes and personal choices. Changes to diet and exercising are the main treatments.

d. Anorexia nervosa, often referred to simply as anorexia, is an eating disorder characterized by low weight, fear of gaining weight, and a strong desire to be thin, resulting in food restriction. Many people with anorexia see themselves as overweight even though they are in fact underweight. If asked they usually deny they have a problem with low weight. They weigh themselves frequently, eat only small amounts, and only eat certain foods. Some will exercise excessively, force themselves to vomit, or use laxatives to produce weight loss.

Complications may include osteoporosis, infertility and heart damage, among others. Women will often stop having menstrual periods.

The cause is not known. There appear to be some genetic components with identical twins more often affected than non-identical twins. Cultural factors also appear to play a role with societies that value thinness having higher rates of disease.

Treatment of anorexia involves restoring a healthy weight, treating the underlying psychological problems, and addressing behaviours that promote the problem. While medications do not help with weight gain, they may be used to help with associated anxiety or depression.

e. HIV and AIDS is a spectrum of conditions caused by infection with the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV). Following initial infection, a person may not notice any symptoms or may experience a brief period of influenza progresses -like illness. Typically, this is followed by a prolonged period with no symptoms. As the infection, it interferes more with the immune system, increasing the risk of developing common infections such as tuberculosis, as well as other opportunistic infections, and tumours that rarely affect people who have working immune systems. These late symptoms of infection are referred to as acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (AIDS).

HIV is spread primarily by unprotected sex (including anal and oral sex), contaminated blood transfusions, hypodermic needles, and from mother to child during pregnancy, delivery, or breastfeeding. Some bodily fluids, such as saliva and tears, do not transmit HIV. Methods of prevention include safe sex, needle exchange programs, treating those who are infected, and male circumcision. Disease in a baby can often be prevented by giving both the mother and child antiretroviral medication. There is no cure or vaccine; however, antiretroviral treatment can slow the course of the disease and may lead to a near-normal life expectancy. Treatment is recommended as soon as the diagnosis is made.

Substance Abuse

Social factors contributing to substance abuse

- Unemployment and poverty.
- An unstable family back ground.
- Peer pressure.
- Lack of supervision.
- Trauma and stress.
- Exposure to substance abuse.
- The media.

Alcohol and Tobacco use and the effects on your body.

Drinking too much – on a single occasion or over time – can take a serious toll on your health. Here's how alcohol can affect your body:

Brain: Alcohol interferes with the brain's communication pathways, and can affect the way the brain looks and works. These disruptions can change mood and behaviour, and make it harder to think clearly and move with coordination.

Heart: Drinking a lot over a long time or too much on a single occasion can damage the heart, causing problems including:

- Cardiomyopathy = Stretching and drooping of heart muscle
- Arrhythmias = Irregular heart beat
- Stroke
- High blood pressure

Liver: Heavy drinking takes a toll on the liver, and can lead to a variety of problems and liver inflammations including:

- Fatty liver
- Alcoholic hepatitis
- Fibrosis
- Cirrhosis

Pancreas: Alcohol causes the pancreas to produce toxic substances that can eventually lead to pancreatitis, a dangerous inflammation and swelling of the blood vessels in the pancreas that prevents proper digestion.

Smoking Tobacco

Tobacco use has predominantly negative effects on human health and concern about health effects of tobacco has a long history.

Tobacco smoke contains more than fifty chemicals that cause cancer. Tobacco also contains nicotine, which is a highly addictive psychoactive drug. When tobacco is smoked, nicotine causes physical and psychological dependency. Cigarettes sold in underdeveloped countries tend to have higher tar content, and are less likely to be filtered, potentially increasing vulnerability to tobacco smoking related disease in these regions.

Effects on your body

Treatment facilities

There are treatment facilities available for any type of common disease or alcohol problems. In most cases hospitals or clinics are the best suited facilities to treat common diseases as for alcohol or drug problems the best suited facilities are rehabilitation centres. Local clinics are stocked with all the needed medication to treat or prevent certain common diseases.

SANCA Soweto is the nearest facility to suit alcohol problems.

Weeks 5-6 : WORLD OF WORK
DECISION MAKING PROCESS

Date: _____

Life is about choices. How you chose to respond to the influences on your lifestyle choices can affect you joy for the rest of your life. Making good decision is an important life skill that we all should have. It is important to know what you want and what needs to be done and changed if you want to successful in life.

So the processes we follow in making decisions include:

- ☐ Seeing the big picture.
- ☐ Compare with past experience.
- ☐ Identify threats.
- ☐ Predict the possible future course of events.
- ☐ Act accordingly.

Factors that commonly have an adverse effect on Decision Making/judgement

- ☐ peer pressure
- ☐ fatigue
- ☐ time pressure
- ☐ anxiety
- ☐ getting back to base at all costs
- ☐ allowing a desire to please other people to eclipse other factors
- ☐ failure to recognise a new situation
- ☐ Confused priorities

Activity 7

Date: _____

7.1. Think about a recent choice/decision you had to make. What did you consider and what was the outcome? Was it the correct decision or is there something you would like to change about it? Discuss it briefly.

Informed decision making skills: positive and negative influences

- o The influences that the people and situations around you can have in your life can either be positive or negative
- o They make it either hard or easy to make certain choices in our lives.
- o We need to make sure that the choices that we make are SMART (SPECIFIC, MEASURABLE, ATTAINABLE, RELEVANT and TIME BOUND)
- o You will never be able to please everyone in life so therefore you need to follow your heart and do what makes you happy and that will allow you to have a healthy positive lifestyle.
- o Only you are able to choose who will become in the future, and only you can make changes in your lifestyle.
- o No one can ever do that for you.
- o In order to make wise changes you need to understand yourself, know what keeps you going and set good realistic goals

Activity 8

Date: _____

Name an instance where your decision made was influenced by someone else.

Was it easier to make a decision based on the influence of that person?

Was it a SMART decision? Why?

Would your decision be different if that person did not influence you?

Every day you are faced with decisions that you need to make. Some decisions are as simple as what to have for breakfast, but other decisions are more complex, such as whether to miss a party in order to study for an exam. At times in your life you will be faced with very important decisions. That is why decision-making is an essential skill that you must learn. Generally, when people are faced with a decision to make, a good decision-maker goes into thinking mode and asks the following questions:

<https://www.coso.biz/2015/03/making-decisions/>

- What are the various choices available?
- What are the consequences of each choice?
- What is the likelihood of these consequences occurring?
- What is the importance of these consequences?
- Considering the consequences, which is the best choice?

Being able to see all the options that are available is something we learn with experience and age. As teenagers, we often see our choices as either/or. Our choices are also still very influenced by peer groups and family as well as emotional immaturity. But, that is okay! These are the learning years and you are bound to make some mistakes – try to learn from them.

Decision making process

Whether at work or in your personal life, making informed decisions are crucial for you to succeed and be happy. It can feel overwhelming to think about how many decisions Each person is required to make in a lifetime, but learning Different strategies for improving your decision-making abilities can make it all seem more manageable.

All of us are confronted with various decisions to make on a daily basis. Some are small and of minor consequence, while others are huge and potentially life changing. Some are simple and obvious choices; others are more difficult and painstaking. For those that are complex and difficult to make, there is a process we can follow to help us come up with a good solution.

VOTE

Taking responsibility for your decisions

To take responsibility for your life, is to take responsibility for your powers of thinking, feeling, speaking and acting, because this is the structure of all human experience. You create your life with your thoughts, feelings, words and actions. You take responsibility when you accept that the decisions you make have consequences.

Stop blaming other people for the mistakes you make. When you make a decision you are responsible for whatever outcome that decision has. Complaining is another form of blaming and playing victim as if you have no choice.

Activity 9

Date: _____

9.1. Identify the 6 steps in the decision making process.

DIFFERENT CULTURES IN SOUTH AFRICA

Date: _____

This is who we are

The Republic of South Africa, as the name already indicates, is located in the very south of the African continent. It is bordered by the Indian Ocean in the east and the Atlantic Ocean in the west. The capital is Pretoria, which is in the north of the country. Around 48 million people live in South Africa.

A long time ago, people from many different countries like India, the Netherlands and Germany came to South Africa. This is why today people like to call South Africa the “Rainbow Nation”: it’s a mixture of many different cultures, religions and languages. Imagine: 11 official languages are spoken in South Africa! However, the largest part of South Africa’s population is of African origin.

South Africa is not only known for its diversity of cultures, it is also home to hundreds of different types of mammals, birds and reptiles, such as zebras, elephants, crocodiles and even penguins. Thousands of plant species grow in South Africa, but woods are very rare. Steppe and mountainous regions are only one aspect of the country.

Activity 10

Date: _____

“Make yourself an African mask”

Which African animals do you know?

Build your own animal mask, just with a paper plate and a piece of string!

1. Cut holes for eyes and nose out of the paper plate.
2. Attach the piece of string to both sides of the paper plate.
3. Now it's time to make the mask look really pretty or even scary! The more colours, the merrier! You can build a perfect lion's mane by adding yellow crepe paper, for example. Use a piece of triangle-shaped cardboard and your mask turns into a powerful rhinoceros! Let your imagination run wild like an African animal!

This is how we live

South Africa may be colourful like a rainbow, but living there can be difficult, especially for kids. The group of South African children who introduced themselves on our world map lives in a children's home in Cape Town. It is called "Elonwabeni", which means "place of happiness". The children live there because their parents or the children themselves have AIDS. They don't live in Elonwabeni for more than 12 months. After this period, they return to their families or find a new home in a foster family who cares for them. Even though the children don't live with their parents, they can visit them on weekends or on special occasions. The children also continue to go to their old school, they do not change schools when they move to Elonwabeni.

AIDS and children whose parents died because of AIDS are one of South Africa's biggest problems. In South Africa, more than one million children have lost their parents to the disease. On the entire African continent, this number reaches around 12 million children. These children often care for their sick parents who are not able to go to work. Sometimes, the children cannot go to school due to these obligations at home.

AIDS is a very serious disease that is caused by a tiny germ called a virus (HIV). When you are healthy, your body can fight off diseases. When you have AIDS, your body cannot protect you, and this is why people with AIDS get very sick and often dies. You can get AIDS when the fluids from your body mix with those of someone who has AIDS. But be careful: it's only a prejudice that you can catch it like the flu! To assume that you can get AIDS just by touching or being near someone who has AIDS is also completely wrong! Very few children get AIDS. But if they were born to a mother who had AIDS, they might be born with AIDS. 33 million people worldwide have AIDS. The number is so large, because there is no medication yet.

Activity: “Watch “Buddyz on the move” and discuss it in class

“Buddyz on the move” is a TV programme that was produced in South Africa by the South African Broadcasting Corporation. It deals with HIV in South Africa. In the programme, a group of children wants to support and cheer up their friend Zinhle who is HIV+ and lives in a convent for rehabilitation. The buddyz want to get a social grant for Zinhle. They also collect money to buy her a cell phone, so that Zinhle can stay in touch with her friends.

Discussion: What does it feel like to lose someone who is very close to you?

This is our school

Nowadays schools are mixed and no child can be excluded by race or religion. But during apartheid the discrimination of other ethnicities than white was also the case in the school system. While white South African children received a quality schooling virtually for free, their black counterparts had only limited access to education. White schools had better material, higher numbers of teachers and better equipment.

Apartheid

...means separateness in Afrikaans, one of the official languages of the country. The term refers to a system of legal racial segregation in South Africa between 1948 and 1990. During this period all ethnic groups had to live separately: the whites had many privileges while the black, Asian and Indian people had very limited rights. Public areas were separated for each group.

Buses, trains, hospitals, education and even beaches were marked for each group.

This is our favourite dish

Sibongile, Michele and their friends didn't make drawings of prepared dishes but they put together a collection of their favourite food on a plate.

Many different agricultural products grow in South Africa. Once they are ripe, they are often exported to countries all over the world. Citrus fruits, corn, wheat, sugar cane and wine are only a few examples.

Activity 12

Date: _____

12.1. Write down the main ingredients of your favourite meal:

12.2. Are the main ingredients exported to other countries?

This is our favourite song

Nombeko, Sibongile and Michele, three girls living in the children's home Elonwabeni in South Africa, sing a typical African song. The song is in Xhosa. The children in class should listen carefully. A special flicking sound is typical for Xhosa. Also watch the girls move their hands to their singing.

Xhosa is one out of 11 official languages in South Africa.
About $\frac{1}{4}$ of the population in South Africa speaks Xhosa.

Examples: "Hello" is "Molo" in Xhosa

"How are you?" is "Unjani?" in Xhosa

"Thank you." is "Enkosi" in Xhosa

Other official languages in South Africa are, for example: Afrikaans, English, Setswana and isiZulu. They are all equally valued.

Date: _____

13.1. Do you know how to greet in other languages? Write down the names of as many languages you know and how to greet in those languages.

This is our favourite game

Children sometimes play a ballgame in which they try to throw a ball at each other. One person throws the ball and the team mates run around and try to escape from the ball.

Ballgames are very popular in South Africa. Rugby and soccer are the most popular ballgames and many people in South Africa are crazy about it.

The Game of Rugby originated in England.

Two teams play against each other.

There are 15 players on each team.

The winner is the team that scores the most within 40 minutes playtime.

A Rugby ball is egg-shaped and usually the players have to throw it backwards. Rugby is a very rough game and the players are big and strong. To protect themselves, they put protection in their mouth, on their head and on their shoulders. The South African Rugby team – the Springboks – won the World Championship in 2007.

Problem solving skills in conflict situations

In all aspects of life you will be confronted with conflict and problems. The way you handle conflict and problems in life is what will determine the success you achieve and the life you live. People can overcome challenging situations by making the right decisions. They should obtain information about the situation to decide whether they need help. They could decide to approach a trusted family member or friend, or obtain professional help from a counsellor or one of the organisations specifically formed to help in that situation.

How to solve a problem

1. Identify the problem.
2. Define the problem.
3. Examine alternatives.
4. Follow a plan.
5. Look at the consequences.

How to keep yourself safe and protect others

- ✿ Think aware. Be aware that there are some people who are not as nice as they seem.
- ✿ Think smart. Be smart when you are out and about.
- ✿ Think ahead. Work out with your parents, carers and teachers what you would do in an emergency situation.

Using mediation to solve problems

Mediation is the involvement of an impartial third party to support and help those involved in a conflict to find a resolution.

The goal of problem-solving mediation is to help parties generate a mutually acceptable settlement of the immediate dispute. The settlement-oriented mediator usually explains that this is the purpose at the outset and defines a process that will assist the parties to work toward that goal.

Steps in solving problems:

- Preparation.
- Understanding the problem.
- Defining points of agreement and dispute.
- Creating options for agreement.
- Developing an agreement.

Developing peace-keeping skills to solve problems.

In order for you to avoid conflict situations or to keep peace instead of searching for reasons to argue there are certain aspects that you need to consider.

1. Show respect for others.
2. Co-operate with others.
3. Take responsibility for your own actions.
4. Listen attentively to others.

Dear Aunt Agony

My parents fight all the time. Sometimes I see my father hitting my mother. He lost his job and goes drinking with his friends during the day. My mother gets angry that he has spent the money she earns for us. I can't do my schoolwork when they fight and I have been getting in trouble with my teachers. My marks have been dropping this year. I want to study further after school and get a good job, but I need high marks for that. My older brother can't cope with what goes on at home. He just goes out with his friends and stays away some nights. One of my friends told me my brother is taking drugs and is stealing to pay for them. Last week, my mother found out that she is HIV positive. I am worried because I did not feel any emotion towards that. I didn't cry or get upset or feel scared. My friends are becoming impatient with me because I don't want to spend time with them or go out anywhere. Why am I feeling like this? Is it because I don't care about anyone? Is there something wrong with me? What should I do?

Please help me.

Volunteerism

Volunteerism is the offering of your services to benefit the community without expecting any reward. To volunteer means to give your time and energy to a project or cause in which you are interested.

Volunteers can make a huge contribution in volunteering their time and skills to projects that include children, the sick, the aged, the poor, animals and the environment.

Volunteer organisations

For some people it is an intimidating task to go out on their own and volunteer to help people in their community. However, if they join forces with other people who share their passion, then it is not such a difficult task. Many significant organisations have started in this way.

Adopt a grandparent on Mandela Day 2012

A meal on Wheels Community Services is a non-profit organisation that provides cooked meals to the poor, vulnerable people and the elderly. The organisation also provides community support, infrastructure and services to those in need. There are many elderly South Africans who need support and care. This Mandela day, Meals on Wheels is facilitating aid given to the elderly by any companies or individuals interested in helping. The activity on July 18 is “Adopt a Grandparent on Nelson Mandela Day”.

Here are some examples of the ways in which you can help needy people and senior citizens:

- Assisted visits to the hospitals or pharmacy.
- Assisted shopping trips.
- Weekly clean-up of their homes.
- Emotional support and upliftment.
- Storytelling to the children.
- Social enrichment at old-age homes and orphanages.

3.1. What is a “volunteer”.

_____ (2)

3.2. Often volunteers get more out of volunteering than the people who they help.
What does this statement mean and do you agree with it?

_____ (2)

3.3. What is the link between Mandela’s life and volunteering

Community-based organisations

- They operate on a local level.
- They rely on the contribution of volunteers.
- They provide a service to the community.
- They are normally non-profit based. This means they do not distribute their surplus funds to owners or shareholders, but instead use them to pursue their goals.

Community-based organisations are normally concerned with two different kinds of issues, namely social and environmental issues.

- ✓ Social issues are problems that affect the community, such as poverty, crime and discrimination. There are many different types of social issues.

Community organisations that deal with social issues, work to find solutions to social problems and to make people aware of these issues.

- ✓ Environmental issues are things that affect environmental health.

Community organisations that deal with environmental issues, work to conserve the environment.

This includes trying to:

- 👉 protect plants
- 👉 animal and sea life
- 👉 and trying to prevent the things that humans do that are bad for the environment.

Sustainable development

Sustainable development is concerned with the responsible management of all natural resources, as well as projects that fight poverty and that work to eliminate the inequalities that exist between rich and poor.

The aim of sustainable development in South Africa is employment for all and access to quality and affordable basic services. This will ultimately ensure a stable, safe and just society for all.

The basic principle of sustainable development is that today's projects must meet the needs of the present generation without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs. This means that we should never use up all our natural resources.

Sustainable development requires people to rely as much as possible on renewable resources, like solar power, rather than power from fossil fuels such as oil and coal, which take millions of years to form.

Different types of volunteer activities

Helping those less privileged: It does not matter how bad you think your life is, there is always someone worse off than you. Everyone has something to offer.

- 👉 Help the elderly in your community.
- 👉 Help build houses for the homeless.
- 👉 Put together a parcel of groceries for the less fortunate.
- 👉 Give your time to help in a soup kitchen.
- 👉 Teach children a new skill.
- 👉 Donate blood.

Action and Outreach (New Brighton Township, Port Elizabeth, South Africa)

A Mother's Union group from a local Anglican Church offers:

- Home care and basic nursing to those dying as a result of HIV and Aids.
- An HIV and Aids counselling service.
- Skills training and a support group for HIV-positive people.
- A feeding programme using produce from their vegetable garden.

Action and Outreach started because there was a need in the community. It was founded by Lulu Msutu, a retired nurse in 2001. Today she heads up a team of 45 volunteers, 25 of whom have been specially trained to provide home care and basic nursing to those who are dying. Over 100 people use their services at any one time. Their work includes counselling, meeting welfare needs, home-based care, skills training, providing fresh vegetables and prayer.

Action and Outreach has a beautiful vegetable garden behind the church. Here they grow nutritious food, vital for the well-being of the people they are caring for. Among other things they grow spinach, beetroot, carrots and chillies. Spinach is often on the menu at the support group lunch. Chillies, crushed up in water and gargled, is a popular remedy for some of the throat problems associated with Aids. Support group members themselves are often found tending the garden and some of them have started their own gardens at home.

“ We try to encourage people who live with HIV and Aids to learn a skill, such as beadwork. When we teach these skills we give people therapy, but also makes it possible for people to earn a living and this gives them a sense of purpose and dignity,” says Nurse Msutu.

Constitutional rights and responsibilities

Gender equity

Gender equity is the fair and equal treatment of men and women. This means that neither of the sexes should be discriminated against because of their gender.

The Bill of Rights is built on the principle of equality. Clause 9 states that: “the state may not unfairly discriminate directly or indirectly against anyone on one or more grounds, including race, gender, sex, pregnancy, marital status, ethnic origin, colour, sexual orientation, age, disability, religion, conscience, belief, culture, language and birth”.

Gender based violence

Gender based violence is when males or females are physically harmed and treated with force and aggression because of their sex or gender. Acts of violence include being hit, pinched, punched, and pushed around, beaten and sexual violence such as rape.

Women and girls are more vulnerable because they are often dependent on men economically, are more likely to lack access to education, and are more exposed to poverty, sexual exploitation, intimidation and rape. They are often not as physically strong as men. Many girls and women are often too scared to tell anyone when they have been abused.

Acts of violence that take place within the home are called domestic violence. Statistics show that there is a high likelihood that one of your friends comes from a home where a parent or child is being abused.

Whether gender based violence is the result of poverty, lack of work and finances, levels of frustration and anger, alcohol and drugs, neglect, the influence of the media, discrimination or other social and environmental factors, this terrible abuse of human rights needs to be eliminated.

Emotional, health and social impact of rape and gender based violence

The emotional, physical and mental trauma of rape and gender based violence leaves many boys and girls, men and women, damaged for life. Remember, a rapist or abuser could be anyone. Rape is not about sexual desire, it is about causing harm.

Emotional impact

Many people live in fear of being victims of a violent attack. This fear can prevent you from living a normal life. Some victims even feel guilty and humiliated about an attack. They think about things they could have done to change the situation and blame themselves for the attack happening.

The victim of abuse often feels helpless and that there is nothing worth living for. He or she will probably experience anger, which they may express by being mad with everyone around them, not only the abuser. Often victims feel alone and that there is no one who understands what they are going through. They might become depressed or even suicidal.

Health impact

Your body goes through trauma during an act of violence. Immediate effects include shock. When you are in shock, your body does certain things to cope with trauma, including feeling cold, faint, shaky and nauseous.

Other health impacts include bleeding from any cuts or wounds, being sore where there is bruising or any broken bones, headaches and body pain.

Long term effects include:

- ✓ Crying more than usual
- ✓ Struggling to concentrate, having flashbacks or nightmares
- ✓ Not being able to sleep properly
- ✓ Feeling very sleepy all the time.
- ✓ Some people even struggle to eat.

Social impact

Rape and gender-based violence destroy our society. They make people fearful, angry and resentful. Some people suffer from eating disorders, sleeping disorders and depression as a result of abuse, leaving them unable to live normal, productive lives. Rape and gender-based violence disempower and break down the nation.

Activity 7

Date: _____

Say whether the following statements are true or false.

- 7.1. Only woman are victims of rape and gender-based violence. _____
- 7.2. Gender-based violence disempowers communities. _____
- 7.3. Gender-based violence has short-term effects only. _____
- 7.4. Run towards a group of people if you feel unsafe. _____
- 7.5. Report any sexual abuse immediately. _____

(5)

Prevention of violence against women

It is important to always think about your safety.

If you feel uncomfortable in a situation, leave. If necessary, run, yell and tell.

If you are a victim of violence, get help as soon as possible. The sooner you are able to get help, the more likelihood there is of ensuring that you don't have long term physical trauma and that the perpetrator is caught.

The law on sexual offences

The Criminal Law Amendment Bill was gazetted on 30 July 2003. This bill recognises the importance of the Constitution and the value of international documents that protect people's rights. It also defines sexual offences.

It acknowledges that South Africa has a high rate of sexual offences and that women and children are most affected. It specifies that perpetrators should be punished if they break the laws. There are several very important things about this Bill:

- It recognises that rape is illegal even if it takes place in a relationship.
- It defines rape. Rape is forced penetration of the genitals.
- It protects children. No one under the age of 16 may be involved in a sexual act- the offender can be jailed.

- Sexual offenders will go to court and will be jailed
- Victims should not be discriminated against.

Sources of help for victims: Safety for girls and woman

If you are a victim of sexual assault, you need to get help as soon as possible. Following a rape or sexual assault you should:

- ☞ Get to a safe place as soon as you can.
- ☞ Tell someone you trust about what happened to you.
- ☞ You may think the best thing for you would be to wash yourself and change your clothes, but that would be destroying evidence.
- ☞ Report the incident, even if you have been drinking.
- ☞ Go to a hospital, clinic or doctor.
- ☞ A doctor should examine you to gather medical evidence.

Learning styles

Visual learning style

If you are a visual learner, you remember best when you use your eyes. Some visual learners remember pictures best, some words and some numbers. Visual learners can picture in their minds things that are described to them.

Aural learning style

If you are an aural learner, you remember information best by using your ears. Hearing learners tend to be good talkers and listeners. They enjoy discussions and remember easily what the teacher says.

Kinaesthetic learning style

If you are a kinaesthetic learner, you like movement and can concentrate best when you are doing something. Doing learners find it difficult to sit still for long periods of time and are most successful when they can practice or do what they are learning.

Reading and Writing learning style

Reading and writing learners prefer to take in and deal with information through reading and writing. If these learners have to learn something, they go straight to a book or the internet and research a topic.

Career categories

When you choose a career, you need to know yourself well. Careers can be grouped according to fields and industries, like trades, engineering, clerical and secretarial and many more. Careers can also be linked to personalities.

Types of career categories

Investigative

I am an economist. I like to analyse and figure things out. I describe, analyse and advise on a wide range of economic issues like tax or wage problems, economist policies, explaining the causes of unemployment and of inflation. Examples of careers that fall into this category include careers requiring you to use your mental muscles, like actuary, mathematician, financial advisor, economist, political scientist, psychologist and professor.

Enterprising

I am an attorney. I give advice to clients regarding their rights and obligations on matters relating to the law. Enterprising careers often involve starting up and carrying out projects. These careers are found in competitive work environments where strong leadership is needed and many decisions need to be taken, like financial manager, lawyer and chief executive officer. They also require selling or influencing opinion like marketing manager and sales people.

Realistic

I am a farmer and responsible for the production of our country's food. Realistic careers frequently involve work activities that include practical, hands-on problems and solutions. They often deal with plants, animals and real-world materials like wood, tools and machinery. Some of the careers people with my personality enjoy doing are engineering, plumber, chemist, dentist, chef, farmer, architect, computer hardware engineer and careers in the healthcare industry.

Artistic

I am a musician and love expressing myself in work. Careers for artistic personalities working with forms, designs and patterns. Artistic occupations include reporter, creative writer, performing artist, fashion designer, graphic and web designer and animator.

Conventional

I am a clerk at a bank. According to my personality, I do things “by the book”, which means I get the details just right. These are some other conventional occupations: accountant, bookkeeper, clerk and dental assistant.

Social

I am a teacher and I love interacting with people. I often notice people in need and make plans to help them. People with my type of personality prefer careers like religious leader, nurse, counsellor, occupational therapist or doctor.

Having a preference for a career in one of these categories does not mean you should be interested in, or good at, all the other careers in this category. This is only an indication of careers that relate to your personality type.

Development of self

Your self-concept is the impression you form of yourself. It is made up of a number of things. These include what other people think about you, what they say to you, what abilities you have and what you achieve. When you are motivated your interest in something is encouraged. With self-motivation, you are excited by your own interest and enthusiasm.

Self-concept formation

Self-concept is the idea or image that you form about yourself based on certain information. Your self-concept is formed by a combination of the different ways you see yourself.

- You decide how worthy you are from the way other people value you. This begins early in childhood.
- You see yourself in a certain way. You may see yourself as a good person or someone who is bad.
- You have an idea of the person you would like to be. It involves your ambitions for the future.

Self-motivation

Self-motivation is when you are encouraged or motivated to do something by your own interest and enthusiasm, without needing pressure from others.

Your self-concept affects your self-motivation. If you have a positive self-concept, you will be confident in the way you relate to other people and motivate yourself to develop other successful relationships. You will also be motivated from within to achieve more and expand your experiences and abilities.

Tips for developing a positive self-concept

- Appreciate the body that you are developing.
- Discover what makes you an individual and appreciate your uniqueness.
- Start thinking independently and take control of your feelings.
- Take responsibility for your actions.
- Learn how to solve problems.
- Become good at making decisions.
- Form sincere and supportive relationships.

Factors that influence self-concept formation and self-motivation.

Many factors influence the way you form your self-concept and whether you motivate yourself. They include the media, your environment, your friends and peers, your family, your culture, your religion and your community. Each factor may have a positive or negative influence.

Media

Certain media programmes and publications cause some children to be unhappy with their physical appearance, when they compare themselves to the “perfect people” they see in the media. They learn to criticise themselves early in life and constantly. During, puberty, when their bodies are changing, they become even more distressed.

Environment

The environment refers to the circumstances or conditions that surround someone. This includes the natural environment, community surroundings, school and family home. It’s a combination of the physical, social and cultural conditions in which people live.

Friends and peers

Children watch adults to get an idea of what is expected of them. Teenagers turn to their friends and peers for opinions on their appearance and actions, as they try to “fit in” with them. Negative feedback can lead to a negative self-concept.

Family

Constant conflict in the family, especially between children and the parents, can cause the children to feel insecure. Teenagers begin to question the values and beliefs of their parents as they develop more independence. Research shows that positive relationships in a home where children feel safe, encourages a positive self-concept.

Culture

Culture gives people security through their sense of belonging to a group. Practising their traditions can enhance family relationships and add to their self-concept. They may feel that they have a good foundation for living and they are part of history.

Religion

Religion gives people an outlook on life, such as respecting themselves and caring for others. It influences their opinions and gives people a set of principles to live by and identify themselves.

Community

Community refers to a group of people with common characteristics, interests, or who live together. Feedback from various people and from your actions in your community gives you information about yourself.

World of work

Types of businesses

There are various types of businesses. These types vary based on who owns the business, what the business does in the market and how it operates. The current business environment is dominated by a lot of business entities and ventures. The following are examples of the most common types of businesses.

1. Sole proprietorship

- ✓ A sole proprietorship is a business that is formed and operated by one person.
- ✓ This type of business is the easiest to form; a reason why it takes up 74 percent of businesses in the USA alone.
- ✓ The owner also makes all decisions, enjoys profits alone, takes pride in ownership, pays fewer taxes compared to Limited Liability Companies (LLCs), needs very little capital to start off and can use his/her assets to support the business operations. On the other hand, borrowing personal assets for this type of business places the owner at risk since the business has no limited Liability.
- ✓ The life of the business also ends when the owner dies or quits.
- ✓ Consequently, capital may be difficult to raise by one person. Again, the owner suffers losses alone.
- ✓ A sole proprietorship is viewed as an informal type of business, this makes it difficult to win contracts or participate in 'formal' activities for 'formal' businesses.

2. Partnerships

- ✓ Unlike sole trading, a partnership is owned and operated with a minimum of two and a maximum of 20 members.
- ✓ It is also easy to form and operate so long as the agreements are spelled out in good time.
- ✓ Again, it does not have any legal provisions to fulfil before set up and capital is easily raised from partners.
- ✓ The combination of partners' know-how and skills ensures that good decisions are debated and the best chosen for the implementation of partnership policies and practices.

- ✓ The disadvantages of this type of business include; sharing of profits among partners, disagreements between partners and a limited business life.

3. Corporation

- ✓ This is a big business owned by shareholders or investors.
- ✓ Its Initial capital is easy to raise as shares with par value are floated on the stock exchange for the public to purchase.
- ✓ This type of businesses has Limited Liabilities i.e. unless the corporate veil is pierced, shareholders' assets can never be claimed by creditors.
- ✓ With different people pooling resources to become shareholders, the life of a corporation is unlimited. In most cases, professionals are hired to manage or run the business and risks are shared by all parties of interest.
- ✓ This type of business is difficult to start considering the legal requirements that must be fulfilled before inception; decisions are by majority rule and suffer double taxation, e.g. individual tax and corporate tax.

4. Multi-national corporations (MNC's)

- ✓ These are global or international businesses that manufacture and sell products in different countries.
- ✓ MNC's are large and all their worldwide operations centrally controlled.
- ✓ With big investments in foreign countries, Multi-national corporations import goods and services, allow local producers in a foreign country to manufacture their products and have assembly operations and manufacturing plants in foreign countries.
- ✓ Examples of these Corporations include Coca-Cola, Nike, AOL, Honda, Toshiba etc.
- ✓ They are known to create goods and services and job opportunities that would otherwise not be available in the countries in which they operate.

5. Not for profit organizations

- ✓ Not for profit organizations are also referred to as non-business entities.
- ✓ They are formed by people with a common interest and are not profit oriented.
- ✓ Most of them pursue a social cause that is beneficial to the society.
- ✓ Not for profit organizations operate under a 'non-distribution constraint' i.e. surplus revenue is used to meet objectives, goals, and mission instead of it being distributed as dividends to shareholders.
- ✓ To avoid taxation, the non-profit organization should have a charitable status or apply for tax exemption.
- ✓ Examples include the Red Cross, UNICEF, communal learning institution and food banks among others.
- ✓ Most of them apply for funding from donors to manage their projects.

6. Franchises

- ✓ Franchises are businesses bought by individuals with some percentage of profit going back to the parent company.
- ✓ Franchises must strictly follow the set guidelines of the main corporation.
- ✓ Most entrepreneurs have resulted in franchising since it's a good way of expanding the business without the risk of incurring debts; this is because business essentially grows from the resources of another party.
- ✓ Again, franchises guarantee rapid growth thus no need to worry about competition.

7. Limited Liability Company (LLC)

- ✓ A limited Liability company (LLC) is formed by at least one person via a written agreement.
- ✓ The agreement has details and various provisions of the company including; issues regarding management, profits and losses distribution and how interest is assigned to others.
- ✓ An article of association is another important document that must be drafted when forming an LLC and backed up with relevant certificates that are in line with the industry.
- ✓ LLCs raise capital by floating shares to the public and spread risks via a share issue.
- ✓ Compared to other forms of business, Limited Liability companies are in a better position for external financing.

8. Trust

- ✓ This is an incorporated type of business that is run and managed for the beneficiary by the trustees.
- ✓ A person who forms a trust are called a 'Trustier' and the third party who gains; the beneficiary'.
- ✓ The main types of trusts include:
 - Living trust:
In this case, the trust is formed by a trustee while still alive
 - Testamentary trust:
This kind of trust is created via a will and will come into effect when the trustee passes on
 - Revocable trust:
A trust that will be easily terminated or modified by the trustor even after inception
 - Irrevocable trust:
The one that cannot be terminated, revoked or modified after creation by the trustee
- ✓ The profits that arise from the investment or the losses accrued are equally shared by beneficiaries as per their interests in the trust.

Development of self

At home, and at school, there are things that you are responsible for.

At home, your responsibilities might include things such as: keeping your room tidy, taking out the trash, cooking dinner, washing dishes, getting ready on time in the morning and making your bed.

At school, your responsibilities might be activities such as: doing homework, studying for tests, going to sport practise, doing monitor duty, and so forth.

Sometimes, it is very difficult to manage all the things that must be done

- ☞ Do you have a busy life?
- ☞ Do you struggle to fit all of your activities into the day?
- ☞ Are you constantly in a state of panic or do you think you are pretty well organised?

Tips for getting organized

General Organisation

1. Organise your space.

- ☞ Throw things away if you don't need them, store things you don't use very often and put everything else in a clearly labelled or specific area.
- ☞ Organising a space doesn't just mean getting it tidy. The purpose of organisation is to be able to find what you are looking for quickly.
- ☞ Look at how you use and store things and work out how to use your space efficiently.
- ☞ If it's inconvenient to get to things (or to put them away), your organisation system is more likely to fail.

2. Put it back.

- ☞ Once you work out where everything belongs, you need to get into the habit of putting it back where it belongs.
- ☞ Don't put it on the bed, or on the kitchen table and think that you will pack it away later.....you probably won't.
- ☞ Always put your keys in the same place.

- ☞ Always put your cell phone in the same place – set up a charging station.

3. Use a calendar.

- ☞ Get a calendar and put it in a place where you see it every day – preferably in the morning.
- ☞ Make it part of your routine to refer to it every day.
- ☞ The bathroom mirror is a popular choice for displaying a calendar – you can look at the day's duties and upcoming events while brushing your teeth.

4. Use a planner or a daily diary.

- ☞ A planner or diary is especially useful if you have busy days.
- ☞ A planner or diary should be easy to carry with you so that you can look at it whenever you need to.
- ☞ Planners and diaries allow for more information than a calendar does.

5. Write it down.

- ☞ A short pencil is always more effective than a long memory.
- ☞ Anything and everything you need to remember should be written down.
- ☞ Even if your memory is great, you can't possibly remember everything.

6. Make list of things to do.

- ☞ Make a 'To Do List' for the day – it should never have more than 5 items or you won't get through it anyway.
- ☞ Choose 2 of the most important items on your list and make every effort to complete them.
- ☞ You can also make a list of things to do for the week, month, year or your life (seriously consider the last one if you want to be successful as an adult!).
- ☞ Once you have created a 'things to do list', cross the items off as you complete them – you will feel really proud of everything you have done when you see many things crossed off and completed.
- ☞ Carry a small notebook and pen set with you so that you can jot things down whenever you need to – transfer them to the 'things to do list' when you have time.

Getting organised for school➤ Goals.

Set realistic goals at the beginning of the school year and break these annual (year-long) goals into mini-goals. Write these goals down on index cards and keep them in a highly visible place where you can see them every day. Writing down your goals makes them more real and motivates you to keep working towards them.

➤ Don't rush.

Wake up early enough for school to arrive well ahead of time. If you need 30 minutes to get up, shower and dress, try waking up at least 45 minutes prior to your departure so that you don't have to rush. To ensure you don't turn off your alarm clock and go back to sleep; place your clock at the far end of your room. This way, you actually have to get out of bed to turn it off, and you're more likely to stay up.

➤ Prepare your clothing.

Before you go to bed each night, choose, iron and lay out your clothes for the next day. This way, you'll be all set to dress and go in the morning.

➤ Avoid clutter.

At the beginning of the school year, you have no clutter. Be careful not to build clutter as the year progresses. Create separate folders for school announcements, tests that have been marked, papers you must give to your parents and so on. As papers become outdated, such as an event that has passed, throw them away.

➤ Make an effective study area.

Designate a quiet, well-lit area for studying. Don't study in front of the television, or in an area of your home where you're bound to be distracted.

➤ Hang a Do Not Disturb sign on your door.

If you can't find a quiet spot at home, go to the library. In addition, you should study while sitting at a table or desk. Avoid studying in a very comfortable chair or a bed, which may cause you to feel drowsy.

➤ Get your beauty sleep.

Get a good night's rest. This will ensure you are alert and ready to learn the following day.

➤ Eat properly.

Eat three healthy meals each day, along with fruit for snacks. Don't overload on sweets, which cause many people to feel tired.

➤ Avoid overload.

While you may sign up for extra school activities, such as softball or chess, don't take on too much. First determine how much study time you need. Then, choose one or two extra mural activities that you enjoy.

➤ Use one calendar.

Use one calendar to plan all of your school and personal activities, rather than two or more. When you use more than one, you run the risk of scheduling conflicts and missed appointments. This is very important. Heed the old proverb: A man who wears two watches, never knows the correct time.

➤ Colour-code.

You may consider colour-coding similar activities on your calendar. For example, highlight all upcoming tests in yellow, study time in green and recreational activities in pink.

➤ Write it down.

When you learn of an upcoming test, event, or anything you must prepare for or attend, immediately jot it in your planner. Don't wait for later, or you may forget about it.

➤ Break up your study time.

Determine how many study hours you need, and schedule study time in your planner. For example, if you need six hours of time to study for a test, you may break that time up into six sessions, of one hour each. Choose the six days, and make a Study Time notation in your calendar.

➤ Schedule consistent study times.

Set aside time every day for study, and make it consistent. For example, set your study time for each afternoon from 4:00pm to 6:00pm. Whatever you do, avoid last minute studying and cramming. Break it up. Break up big tasks into smaller, bite-sized jobs. For instance, if you have to study three chapters in your history book, study one chapter at a time each day. If you have to work on a project, break it down into three or four stages.
